MESA, Ariz. -- Rising fuel prices are not deterring summer vacationers from taking recreational vehicles out onto Arizona roads. The increasing demand at RV Rental Outlet, Arizona's largest RV rental company with current year model RVs for rent, has led to the expansion of their 2008 and 2009 motor homes, travel trailers, toy haulers and pop-up campers.

The Recreational Vehicle Industry Association (RVIA) reports that even when fuel prices rise, RV trips remain the least expensive type of vacation for a family of four. Research from PKF Consulting, a tourism research firm, found that RV vacations offer big savings over travel by car, plane with hotel accommodations or rental properties. Their studies revealed savings on average for a family of four to be 26 to 74 percent over other vacation types.

"Our customers love the flexibility and fun they have by renting a vacation home on wheels," says Donn Kaebisch, co-owner at RV Rental Outlet. "No one should sacrifice a quality family outing when they have a convenient, affordable vacation option to spend time exploring the wilderness, cooking meals together and building new family experiences to remember for a lifetime."
